

MAYOR WURSTER IS PULLING THE WIRES.

A Compromise on Delegates in Two Doubtful Congressional Districts.

Harmon and Clark and Reynolds and Woodruff Will Go to St. Louis.

FIGHT IS RED HOT IN THE FIFTH.

Kattenbach Deserts the Worth Faction for the Administration—No Settlement of the Chairmanship Question Reached Yet.

Political conditions in Brooklyn changed suddenly yesterday afternoon when, speaking figuratively, Worth and Wurster clasped hands on the eve of battle. The hand-clasp only affected two of the Congressional districts in doubt, however. In these a compromise ticket was agreed upon. In the Fifth District, where the Mayor and the wily lieutenant of Mr. Platt dwell together in anything but peace and amity. The fight is personal and to the knife. Either the Mayor or Worth will fall, but neither will surrender.

The most important change in the situation yesterday was caused by the compromise in the Third and Fourth districts. Both factions had claimed victory in this territory. The administration forces had probably a shade the better of it in the Third, and the Worth-Buttling combination seemed in a fair position to control the Fourth. The position of each was most uneasy, however, and a slip either way might set all calculations at naught.

Well aware of this state of things, the Mayor made up his mind that a settlement was desirable.

There was only one man who could carry out the wishes of the Mayor. He was Register Granville W. Harmon. Personally popular among the members of both factions, and antagonistic to none of the powers, he would be an ideal peacemaker. To secure Harmon's services, however, the Mayor had to swallow a bit of his pride. Although he was most active in his support of Wurster during the last campaign, a coldness sprang up between the two after Wurster's election. Harmon did not throw his influence in the party against Wurster, but neither did he support him. He did not visit the Mayor's office.

HARMON TO THE RESCUE. Willis and the Mayor's parties sought the services of Harmon yesterday, and in the afternoon the Register visited Mr. Wurster in his office.

While he was closeted with the Mayor there was an earnest conference in progress in Controller Palmer's office. The conferees were Worth, Buttling, Palmer, Henry C. Saffin and several other Platt leaders.

After conversing with the Mayor for some time Harmon went from his office to that of the Controller. The result was an agreement upon Harmon, and Alderman Joseph Clark, of the Twenty-sixth ward, as delegates to the National Convention from the Fourth District.

Clark has been negotiating with both factions, although he is at heart a Worth man. Harmon might be regarded as an administration delegate. Neither is strongly partisan.

Matters having been amicably settled in the Fourth District, attention was turned to the Third. A conference was held in the office of ex-Senator William H. Reynolds. The result was an agreement upon Reynolds, a Worth man, and Park Commissioner Timothy Woodruff, a staunch supporter of the administration.

TWO ANTI-PLATT DELEGATES. In the Second District it is probable that both delegates will be anti-Platt. City Works Commissioner Theodore B. Willis will undoubtedly be one, and William E. Phillips is likely to be the other. Chairman George A. Roberts, of the County Committee, insists that he is a candidate, and so is General William C. Wallace. Buttling is said to favor Willis, as against Roberts, whom he is anxious to down, but the big Sheriff is watching the situation closely, and may, in view of the dissensions in the administration ranks, jump into the melee as an active supporter of Wallace, who is said to lean Worth's way.

In the Sixth District, which is hopelessly Worth, Saffin and Palmer will be the representatives in St. Louis, to sign the praises of Morton—maybe.

In the Fifth District the prettiest fight that has been going on for years in Kings County politics is going on. The surprising feature in the appearance of the plain business man who became Mayor, as he said, to give the city a business administration, as a daring and astute politician. Mr. Wurster's skill at the play is undoubtedly due in a great measure to the training of his partner, Mr. Willis, a veteran of many such affairs. However, the Mayor was an apt pupil, and he now handles the political wires with the touch of an expert.

He has thrown himself body and soul into the battle against Worth. His opponents claim that he is conducting the fight on the lines of his campaign in the Republican city convention and is promoting everything. This was the cry raised yesterday, when it was learned that Ernest J. Kattenbach, of the Twenty-eighth ward, had desisted from the fight.

The blow was a serious one to the Platt forces, and the Wurster-Willis crowd was jubilant. The Mayor and Kattenbach had a serious conference on Tuesday evening and then the latter reported his change of front at the meeting of his ward committee. Worth's friends immediately denounced him. It was stated he had been offered a place as Police Justice, but this he denied yesterday.

"I supported the Mayor because we elected him as a Republican, and I do not believe in making war on him now," was his explanation.

His former allies say he can only deliver eight votes, and that his defection has been worth more than that to them.

Another man who ranged himself beside the Mayor yesterday was Ernest Nathan, but he is considered a light-weight in the present contest.

Should the administration forces win in this district the Mayor and Kattenbach will be the delegates. Should they lose, Worth and Taylor will probably go to St. Louis.

HOW DELEGATES WILL VOTE. Leaving out the Fifth District, the Kings County delegation will be made up of three strong Platt men, one on the fence, and three anti-Platt. All the delegates will go to St. Louis shouting for Morton, although after the first ballot they will probably split, the Worth men to vote for Reed and the Wurster men for McKinley.

There is no change in the question as to who shall call to order the Congressional district conventions to-night. Chairman Roberts, of the County Committee, says his appointees will act as temporary chairmen. Platt's men still insist that the delegates to the State Committee will perform that duty. Unless a settlement is made this morning there will be serious trouble on this point at the conventions to-night.

TOUGH ON IRISH PATRIOTS

Twenty-one Men Lose Their Positions for Not Reporting for Work on St. Patrick's Day.

Twenty-one men employed as helpers in the Healey Iron Foundry, at Driggs avenue and North Fourth street, Williamsburg, were discharged yesterday because they refused to work on St. Patrick's Day.

The men were told on Monday night by the foreman that if they remained away their places would be filled by others.

The firm had pressing work on hand, and when the men failed to go to work the foundry had to be closed. Yesterday found that their places had been filled.

DIVORCE PAPERS MISSING.

The Issue of Mrs. Eysel's Suit Against Her Second Husband Depends Upon a Former Decree.

Nearly six months ago Frederick Eysel secured by default a judgment annulling his marriage to May Eysel. Yesterday she petitioned Justice Van Wyck, of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to reopen the case. It came out that the papers in the case were mislaid in Mrs. Eysel's lawyer's office. The result was that she made no answer to her husband's complaint, and judgment was rendered against her. Last September Mrs. Eysel and her husband for separation, alleging cruelty. Eysel retaliated by bringing a counter suit for the annulment of his marriage. He claimed that she was the wife of Conrad Schlen when she married him. In her first answer she admitted marriage to Schlen, but declared that she was granted a divorce twenty-nine years ago. Yesterday Justice Van Wyck was notified that she had sent to Germany for a copy of her decree of divorce. His Honor said if he procured a transcript of the decree he would reopen the case.

HE SUES FOR $50,000.

Myck's Wife Was Drowned, and Her Husband Wants to Recover from a Railroad.

There was recently removed from the Supreme Court of Kings County to the United States District Court in Brooklyn the suit of Christian Myck, against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, for $50,000 damages. The suit grew out of an accident in the East River on September 9, 1895.

Mrs. Alma Josephine Myck, the wife of the plaintiff, was sailing down from Port Jervis in the tug boat of Captain John Bridge a tug boat of the defendant, drawing two tons, collided with the lighter vessel, the Myck, which was drowned. Myck alleges that the accident was due to the negligence of the company's employees. The defense is a general denial.

DETECTIVE MADE A DICKER.

Donovan Related How He Captured the Alleged Counterfeiters.

Toscano Cappazucco, Antonio Tramento, Conancio Bifaloca, Felix Battalocchia and John Manterello, the alleged counterfeiters captured recently by Detective Donovan, of Brooklyn, were before Justice Walsh in the Adams Street Court, yesterday.

Donovan related how he had arranged with Bifaloca to buy $100 worth of $1, 50 and 25 cent pieces for $32, at Cappazucco's saloon, No. 54 Union street. Bifaloca assured him he had got rid of $400 of the counterfeit coin in Coney Island a few months. Battalocchia, he was told, kept a clear stand on Coney Island, much frequented by wheelmen, and palmed off considerable counterfeiters in giving them change.

Tramento, who is sixty-five years old, and served time in Louisiana for counterfeiting, was discharged, but the other four were held for the grand jury.

TWO FAMILIES BURNED OUT.

One Building Destroyed by Fire and Another Damaged in Long Island City.

The fire which started in the billiard room attached to J. R. Hicks's saloon at the corner of Eighth street and Jackson avenue, Long Island City, shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday morning, completely destroyed the building. It was a three-story frame structure. The flames consumed the building in the house of the Hicks family, and this was badly damaged. The Hicks family were asleep at the time the fire broke out, and they were unable to escape. The loss was about $7,500, which is partly covered by insurance.

The loss will amount to about $7,500, which is partly covered by insurance.

WIDOW SCHULTZ SUES.

Husband Killed by Long Island Railroad Train, and She Wants $30,000.

Annie Schultz, the widow of George Schultz, a well-known toy manufacturer, of Brooklyn, who was run over on September 19, by a Long Island Railroad train and killed, on Atlantic avenue, near Chestnut street, has brought suit in the United States District Court in Brooklyn to recover $30,000 from the railroad company. The account was given according to the complaint of the widow, who has two infant children, to the failure of the defendant to provide proper guard rails along the tracks at the Chestnut street crossing.

NAMELESS VICTIM OF THE SEA.

Westhampton, L. I., March 18.—The body of the man was washed ashore at Montauk Point on Sunday was ordered buried to-day by Coroner Benjamin G. Halsey. The body was badly decomposed and had evidently been in the water a long time. There was nothing on the body by which it could be identified. A letter was received by the Coroner from the Brooklyn office of Charles J. Saunders, who disappeared on February 20, in which a description of the missing man was given. The Coroner says the body does not resemble the description given of Saunders.

TWO MEN THROWN DOWNSTAIRS.

Discord prevailed in the Concord House on Fulton street, Brooklyn, Tuesday night. John M. Farrell, sixty years old, and Thomas O'Neill were thrown downstairs by one of the lodgers. Three of Farrell's friends were broken and he was removed to St. Peter's Hospital. John H. Cox was arrested on the suspicion that he threw the men down.

WILL FOUND IN A LOUNGE.

Adam Walker Had Hidden It Away and It Might Have Remained There Forever.

The Relatives of the Eccentric Old Man Had Believed That He Died Intestate.

DISCOVERY MADE WHILE DUSTING.

A Housemaid Came Across the Paper and a Pocketbook Filled with Greenbacks and Gave Them to Her Employer.

When Adam Walker died in the Seney Hospital in Brooklyn on November 23 last, he left, so far as was known, no will behind him disposing of his property. The estate, which consisted of his late home at No. 38 Walworth street, some mortgages and money in the bank, would, if he died intestate, be divided up among his next of kin, a certain portion going to the State. No will being found, the Public Administrator would step in and act as executor, settling up all claims and dividing the property according to an order of the Surrogate's Court.

Mr. Walker was a widower, with no children, but he had many near relatives. There were three sisters, Margaret Osborn, Nancy Osborn and Harriet Phillips, all of whom are said to live in Pennsylvania; an uncle, James Walker, who now lives in the Walworth street house; Robert Walker, a brother, whose residence is unknown, and Mrs. Eliza Dains, a half sister, who resided in Brooklyn.

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY.

Death came suddenly to Mr. Walker. He had been stricken down with pneumonia at his home, but a fatal termination of his illness was not expected. Then it was found that he was suffering from a tumor, and he was taken to the hospital to be operated upon. He died there, without indicating to any of his relatives who were with him in his last moments what disposition he wished to be made of his property.

Mrs. Dains, the half sister, is now deceased. Her son, William J. Dains, of No. 122 St. Mark's place, surprised the relatives by walking into the Surrogate's Court in Brooklyn yesterday and offering for probate will of Mr. Walker. The instrument bore date of October 10, 1895, and was signed by Samuel Bowden, now dead, and R. Carpenter, of No. 89 Monroe street, as witnesses.

THE MISSING WILL FOUND.

Mr. Dains told a strange story of the finding of the will. It seems that after Mr. Walker's death his uncle, James Walker, went to live in the Walworth street house. The old-fashioned furniture, which had been in the house for twenty years, was left undisturbed.

One day, three months after Mr. Walker's death, a servant, in cleaning a lounge in what had been the old man's bedroom, discovered the missing will.

The lounge was covered with black hair cloth. There was a deep crevice where the back was fastened on. The servant tried to brush the dust out of this when she ran across the roll of paper, which had been pushed far down out of sight. Taking this out, she examined the lounge further and found a pocketbook. The latter was full of greenbacks. The girl gave the paper and pocketbook to her employer. The pocketbook was found to contain $60.

The paper was the will, and Mr. Walker at once communicated with the other heirs named in it.

PROVISIONS OF THE WILL.

According to the terms of the alleged will the sisters, with the exception of Mrs. Dains, were cut off from any share in the property. James Walker was to receive $500, and the residuary estate was to be divided between Mrs. Dains and Robert Walker.

This brother Robert had disappeared from home twenty years ago and nothing had ever been heard from him. It was provided in the paper that Robert's share should be held in trust for ten years, and then if he be not found, Mrs. Dains or her heirs are to receive it.

The sisters who are cut off by the provisions of this instrument are represented by Lawyer P. E. Callahan, and notice was given yesterday that there would be a contest over the probate of the will. Adam Walker was about fifty years of age when he died. It is said that he was somewhat eccentric in his ideas and that the hiding of the will in a place where it might never have been found is just what might have been expected of him.

ONE POLICEMAN DISMISSED.

Two Others Were Fined $60 Each for Patronizing Saloons.

Patrolman James T. Whalen, of the Schenectady Avenue Station, Brooklyn, who had three different charges preferred against him, was dismissed from the force yesterday. Whalen is the officer who insisted upon leaving his post to bail out a policeman who had been arrested.

Anthony Monaghan, of the Grand Avenue Station, and Patrolmen Peacock and Connors, of the Richards Street Station, were each fined $60. Monaghan drank too much on his day off and the other men wandered into a saloon while on duty.

COLLIDED GOING TO A FIRE.

A Fire Engine and a Salvage Corps Wagon Smashed into Trolley Cars.

Engine No. 5, of Pierrepont street, Brooklyn, responded to an alarm of fire yesterday afternoon. At Court and Fulton streets the engine collided with a Fulton street trolley car, smashing the latter's dashboard.

The Salvage Corps wagon ran into a Meeker avenue car while going to the same fire. The car and wagon were damaged, but no one was hurt.

TO LAY OUT A HIGHWAY.

Riverhead, L. I., March 18.—J. Clinton Robbins, William G. Nichol and Benjamin B. Wood, all residents of Babylon, have been appointed commissioners by County Judge Benjamin H. Reeve, to inquire into the necessity of laying out a highway in the town of Islip, in accordance with the application made by John Saveroll. The commissioners appointed to lay out a highway in Baiting Hollow, town of Riverhead, have made a favorable report of the project.

Learning How to Balance the Scales.

Charles A. Teale, the elite tailor, whom ex-Mayor Scheraga held in office appointed Police Justice in Brooklyn, sat beside Justice Hagerty in the Myrtle Avenue Court yesterday. The latter showed the Justice-elect how Mr. Teale conducted his new office of the Penal Code. He will assume office May 1.

HE CALLED HER A HOODOO.

A Brooklyn Man Feared Evil from the Giggles of a Fair Neighbor.

Complained That She Followed Him the Streets and Watched Him.

SHE DOES NOT LOOK UNCANNY.

Said She Had Five Children and a Husband of Her Own and Would Not Be Likely to Run After Her Elderly Accuser.

Mrs. Margaret Connors does not look like a hoodoo, or anything else that is uncanny or mysterious in the least. She is a healthy looking matron of middle age, with a comfortable figure, a round, rosy, good-natured face and five children. She is very proud of the children and she says "so is Mike." Mike is her husband.

Mrs. Connors and Mike and the five interesting children live at No. 180 Wallabout street, Brooklyn. Two doors away, at No. 174, lives Frederick Wagner, who also has a wife and several children. Wagner is fifty-five years old.

Last Monday Wagner paid a visit to the Lee Avenue Court, and complained that Mrs. Connors was following him about the street. He wanted protection from her, and she would be summoned to appear in Court yesterday morning.

Wagner seemed tickled, and told his neighbors that he would soon be rid of the hoodoo. The news reached Mrs. Connors' ears, and she was astounded; so was Mike, and so were the children.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed the lady when Court Officer Myers served the summons upon her. "Why, the man must be crazy!"

"He must," said Mike. "Why, I never noticed him at all. I am a hoodoo. Now, I know he's crazy," said Mrs. Connors.

Wagner and his wife and children were in Court yesterday to give testimony against Mrs. Connors. The latter had her lawyers by her side.

"Do I look like a hoodoo?" she asked. "I have not spoken to that man in fifteen years, and I have a husband of my own and would not run after him." "I am satisfied that she is not in love with me, and I would not mind if she were," said Wagner. The others day, she was looking at me in a queer way," said Wagner.

Mrs. Wagner said she had seen Mrs. Connors wave a red handkerchief at her husband, and the Wagner children gave similar testimony. The Justice told Mrs. Connors not to bother Wagner anymore, and dismissed the complaint.

JUSTICE DUFFY A HERO.

He Rushed into a Burning Building in Long Island City and Rescued a Woman.

Police Justice Charles T. Duffy was the hero of the fire which destroyed the three-story frame building owned by James Hicks, who had a saloon on the first floor, at No. 150 Jackson avenue, Long Island City, early yesterday morning. The flames, which broke out on the ground floor, quickly spread to the upper portion of the house, occupied by the Hicks family, who were in their beds.

Justice Duffy was on his way home, riding on a trolley car, when he saw the fire and jumped off. Hearing the cries of women from the upper floors of the burning building he rushed upstairs and seized Mrs. Hicks, who is an invalid, and carried her in safety to the street.

The other inmates narrowly escaped by fleeing in their night clothes.

The loss of Mr. Hicks is about $7,000. James Langley, who owned an adjoining three-story frame building, loses about $3,000, mostly damaged by water.

"I WILL HANG MYSELF."

Fuchs's Threat to a Lawyer Who Served Him with Divorce Papers.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fuchs, thirty-three years old, who is stopping with friends at No. 105 Schenectady avenue, Brooklyn, had Counselor Frank C. Beck serve papers in an action for separation on her husband, Joseph Fuchs, a wealthy wheelwright, who lives at No. 294 Johnson avenue, Williamsburg. The couple have been married four years, and have six children.

The action is brought on the ground that Fuchs is an habitual drunkard, and that he frequently assaulted his wife.

When Counselor Beck, who served the papers, called on Fuchs, the latter threatened to hang himself. "Wait until I tell up my affairs, then I will hang myself," he said.

SUES TO RECOVER A CHILD.

It Was Adopted by Strangers, and Now Mrs. Wilson Demands It.

Mrs. Charlotte Wilson applied for a habeas corpus in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday. In her petition she said her infant daughter, Lillian, was detained against her wishes by Charles and Julia Foote.

Mr. and Mrs. Foote opposed the application. They said Mrs. Wilson advertised the child for adoption in December, 1894. Since then they had cared for the girl, and had become much attached to her. Lillian was willingly surrendered by Mrs. Wilson, who said at the time that she could not care for her. Counsel said there was reason to believe that Mrs. Wilson was not Lillian's mother, and further they did not regard her as a proper person to control the child.

Van Wyck appointed Howard J. Forker as referee to pass upon the merits of the application.

THE LEADING AUCTIONEERS

ADVERTISE ALL THEIR SALES IN THE JOURNAL.

ALFRED LUKS, the chemist, who was arrested on the suspicion of having tried to set fire to the house No. 2670 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, was arraigned in the Gates Avenue Court yesterday. He pleaded guilty to the charge made by his wife, namely, threatening to kill her.

He said he was intoxicated when he spoke to his wife, and he meant her no harm. Justice Harman held him in $300 bail on this charge.

LUKS HELD ON ONE CHARGE.

Pleaded Guilty to Threatening to Kill His Wife and Went to Jail.

Alfred Luchs, the chemist, who was arrested on the suspicion of having tried to set fire to the house No. 2670 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, was arraigned in the Gates Avenue Court yesterday. He pleaded guilty to the charge made by his wife, namely, threatening to kill her.

He said he was intoxicated when he spoke to his wife, and he meant her no harm. Justice Harman held him in $300 bail on this charge.

WIFE DEAD, HUSBAND DYING.

Constable Duffy Contracted Pneumonia While Nursing His Sick Wife.

Constable James Duffy, of the Butler Street Court, Brooklyn, was reported dying of pneumonia yesterday. His wife was stricken down by the disease a week ago. Duffy went home and nursed her night and day, but she died on Monday. He became ill a few hours later, and his recovery is doubtful.

FEAR THE BARK FOUNDERED.

The Carrie L. Tyler Is Three Weeks Overdue from Demorara.

Bayport, A. I., March 18.—Much anxiety is felt here over the non-arrival of the bark Carrie L. Tyler, which left Demorara on January 28 for New York, with a cargo of sugar. The vessel is consigned to A. Dayton & Co., No. 25 South Street, New York, and should have arrived three weeks ago.

Grab Bills To Be Passed.

Albany, March 18.—The Brooklyn Republicans are beginning to slip their "grab" bills out of the committees. By mixing up their schemes to secure patronage with an occasional meritorious measure they expect evidently to avert attention. But the bills are to be passed, no matter what public opinion may be on the subject, and the work of passing them will begin early in next week's session.

Some of these measures were reported favorably to-day. The first to appear was Assemblyman Audett's bill, raising the salary of President Clark, of the Board of Aldermen, from $2,000 to $3,000. Mr. Clark has been several times lately to see about this, and he is to come up again very soon to urge its speedy passage. He thinks it is worth $3,000 to be at the head of the Aldermen.

Another of the "grab" bills to make its appearance embodied the scheme to give District Attorney Backus five extra stenographers, five new assistant clerks, and the power to get rid of the twelve Democratic detectives, so that an equal number of Republicans can be appointed in their places. There was no disguising the object of this scheme at the outset, and when it was reported to-day Assemblyman Audett, who introduced the bill, remarked that the Journal "had it right." It is not likely that the District Attorney will lobby for his bill in person, but there is no doubt about the intention of the Republican majority to pass it.

There was also a favorable report on Senator Wieman's bill extending the term of office of Randolph C. Fuller two years as Inspector of Buildings. His salary is also fixed at the comfortable sum of $3,000 a year. This ought to make an impression on the Twentieth Ward, where the Inspector runs things for his party. It is expected to do so, and the bill will be put through as speedily as possible.

The Audett bill authorizing the County Treasurer to appoint another deputy was also reported favorably. That official says he needs more help since the work of his office was somewhat enlarged, and the extra deputy will come in handy just about this time, when there is such a big demand for patronage and places in Kings County. The man for the place is said to be already picked out, and he will be named as soon as the Governor signs the bill.

One measure that was reported with the batch had to go back on account of the vigorous opposition made by Senator McGarran. It was not a "grab" bill on its face, but undoubtedly contained a "good thing" for somebody. This was the bill introduced by Senator Brush to fix the place for holding judicial sales in Brooklyn. Senator McGarran called it the worst kind of special legislation, and insisted so strongly on having a hearing on it that the promoters of the measure had to consent. A lively time is expected at the hearing, and the real reason for making the proposed designation will be thoroughly aired by the Democrats.

One of the labor bills that Assemblyman Audett has championed this session was favorably reported during the afternoon. It provides that all persons selling prison-made goods must get a license from the Controller. Wholesalers are to pay $500 and retailers half that sum for the privilege. Another labor bill reported was that requiring temporary floorings to be laid in buildings in course of construction, so as to protect workmen from accidents. Still another labor measure to get a favorable report is Assemblyman Brennan's providing that contractors and sub-contractors on public works shall establish the same eight-hour day as prevails on such jobs throughout the State.

THE MENU AT THE JAIL.

Warden Hayes Has Decided Upon a Diet for the Convicts in the Kings County Penitentiary.

Warden Hayes has secured a new chef for the Kings County Penitentiary. The Warden and the chef sat all day yesterday with the Charity Commissioners discussing the question of a menu for the 900 convicts. Hereafter it will be as follows:

SATURDAY. Breakfast—Corned beef hash, coffee and bread. Dinner—Beef stew, tomatoes, potatoes, bread. Supper—Coffee and bread.

CEMETERY OFFICIALS SUE.

Bring Action Against Two Towns for Delay in Repairing a Bridge.

A suit has been begun in the Queens County Supreme Court by J. Perker Sloan, representing the Cedar Grove Cemetery, against the towns of Flushing and Newtown. The damages are claimed because of the delay in repairing Strong's bridge, which collapsed several weeks ago.

The cemetery is near the bridge, and all funerals have had to go several miles in the country to reach the burial ground on account of the bridge being down.
